Health Care / Health Design

The Future of Health Design

Wednesday 18 March 2015

Details.

When

Wednesday 18 March 2015 8.45 am - 5.00 pm ()

Where

Melbourne Brain Centre Kenneth Myer Building 30 Royal Parade Parkville Melbourne VIC

Program Info

The inaugural Health Care/Health Design forum brings together Australasia's leading practitioners, researchers, administrators and clinicians to discuss issues, share their experiences and speculate on possible futures for health design and healthcare. The four keynote speakers will present international and local benchmarks and interrogate the relationship between best practice in health design and the delivery of healthcare. These will be followed by moderated panel discussions in which panel members will draw the audience into the conversation.

Healing Supported by the Force of the Senses

Presented by Lone Wiggers, Partner, C.F. Møller

Through a series of projects and case studies, Wiggers will speak about future trends in hospital design and why evidencebased design and sustainability should be drivers into the future. She will discuss the effects daylight, silence, nature and art have on patients and their welfare, how healing is supported by the "force of the senses," and how new technologies such as robots, electronic journals, tube postal service systems and voice-controlled patient facilities will support this design approach. Wiggers will talk about European projects such as the National Hospital and Akershus University Hospital in Norway; the emergency and infectious diseases unit at Skåne University Hospital in Sweden; and Aarhus University Hospital in Denmark.

Design &
Healthcare: Moving
Beyond the
Functionalist Model

Presented by Corbett Lyon, Director, Lyons

Hospitals, particularly in the latter part of the last century, have moved increasingly toward functionalist, medico-centric models where design was at best marginalized and at worst ignored in the pursuit of functionality and efficiency. We are now seeing a renewed worldwide interest in healthcare design, including its demonstrable benefits to the healing process. Design is now being re-embraced by architects and health professionals alike as a key element in health delivery thinking. In his talk, Lyon will explore the genealogy of the modern hospital and trace the evolving relationship between design and healthcare delivery, drawing on the new Lady Cilento Children's Hospital in Brisbane and other recent examples of Australian healthcare design.

Health Care Challenges in the Twenty-First Century

Healthcare today is dramatically different from what it was fifty years ago but on the surface the institutional arrangements of hospitals and general practice still look similar. If you look behind the walls of the institutions, huge changes have occurred in the way care is delivered, how services are funded, and to some extent, in who owns and delivers care. Looking forward another fifty years and one would expect more transformations. But what might these transformations look like? What trends can we see today which, when extrapolated, might reshape the health system? This talk will include some guesses about the future of healthcare and the implications for us all.
