Program Info

Architecture can be a catalyst for transformation at all scales. The Architecture Symposium: Beyond the Building presents a curated selection of contemporary Australian architects whose public projects have an impact that is beyond the built form itself. In these buildings, form and use, aesthetics and technology, concept and program, ethics and immediacy, private need and public good often meet head-on. Discussion will highlight works that have synthesized these often-conflicting factors, extending the brief to unlock remarkable results that have a ripple effect on the building's context and its community.

Program.

MASTERPLAN / MICROPLAN

In pursuit of a lucid network based on existing and proposed morphology, open space structure and landscape, cities are often conceptualized at the macro scale. However, to capture the initiatives and interventions that stimulate a dialogue between the city, the community and the individual, the masterplan must also consider the scale and connective tissue of the microplan. Working and thinking at different scales – whether it be through project, practice or intervention – reveals the human-scale city.

Anita Panov and Andrew Scott

Anita Panov and Andrew Scott studied architecture at the University of Newcastle under Richard Leplastrier and Peter Stutchbury, among others. After decade-long apprenticeships with William Smart and Angelo Candalepas respectively, they commenced practice together in 2012, and in 2016 were the first collaboration to receive the New South Wales Emerging Architects prize, the citation stating:

"Through their conscious and thoughtful approach to the crafting of buildings, Panov Scott demonstrate design excellence, generosity of spirit and leadership by example. They are builders, teachers, curators, scientists, agitators and writers. This critical thought leadership has the potential to inspire the next generation of architects."
