Program Info

The workplace is evolving, prompting a shift in what a typical office can and should offer. As employers and employees get familiar with working on and off site, a change in office atmosphere and amenities is not only a movement but a demand. In this edition of Work Place / Work Life, we question what these new expectations are and how design can cater to them. We'll hear from leading practitioners, researchers and workplace experts from Australia and abroad as they discuss and critique the future of office design.

PEACE OF MIND: WORKPLACE DESIGN FOR CULTURE AND WELLNESS

A healthy and thriving workplace culture improves teamwork, raises morale, increases productivity and efficiency and enhances retention and hiring of staff. With this in mind, how can workplace design foster a successful work culture while simultaneously cater to the wellbeing of staff? Speakers in this session will discuss processes and projects that are redefining the design brief to create spaces that are equal parts convivial and constructive.

Speakers.

Viggo Haremst

Viggo has been instrumental in the success of Denmark-based architectural firm Henning Larsen in Australia, winning the international design competition for Cockle Bay Park – a city-changing project on Sydney's harbourfront. He is overseeing the design development of Cockle Bay Park, and is the design director for Henning Larsen's commercial activities in the Asia Pacific.

Viggo's contributions to the design of the award-winning SDU Campus Kolding resulted in one of the world's first low-energy universities. His experience in higher education and work environments has informed how Henning Larsen designs commercial projects and workplaces.

Adele Winteridge

Adele Winteridge is the founder and design director of multi-disciplinary design practice Foolscape Studio. She conceives all projects as critical investigations of human-centric, biophilic and sustainable design. Keenly strategy-driven, Adele and her diversely talented team continually question the boundaries of what design can do for people, places and communities. Where solutions do not currently exist, her mandate is to test, provoke and creatively innovate.

Working across the commercial, hospitality, residential and public realms, Foolscape Studio has been widely acknowledged and awarded for its endeavours to meaningfully contribute to urban communities' identities and liveability.

Moderator.

Dr Libby Sander

Dr Libby Sander is an internationally renowned academic in the field of work and the workplace. She is a leading expert in understanding the future of work, and how it can be reimagined to allow for more meaningful and creative lives.

Libby is an agenda contributor at the World Economic Forum and has been a TEDx speaker. Her research articles on international academic website The Conversation have over 2.8 million readers and have been republished nationally and internationally – for Harvard Business Review, BBC, Newsweek, ABC, and major Australian newspapers.
