October 2022 – January 2023

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Participants who attend All Together Now: Designing for Community (Design Speaks Collection Season Two 2022/2023) will be able to:

- Consider the role architecture can play in creating health care environments that are embraced by the communities they serve.

AACA Competency: Project Initiation and Conceptual Design; PC17, PC29.

- Compare case study health care projects that engage with the community in a meaningful way.

AACA Competency: Project Initiation and Conceptual Design; PC24.

- Recall specific consultation processes that can improve community perceptions of a health care facility.

AACA Competency: Project Initiation and Conceptual Design; PC28, PC34.

FORMAL ASSESSMENT

- Identify three common barriers to designing health care facilities that are “community centric.”

- Identify a specific speaker that challenged you to think differently about designing health care facilities for community.

- What are some of the specific considerations needed for designing health care facilities for Indigenous communities?

- What is an example of a design strategy that was undertaken in an international context and could be explored and adapted to an Australian context?

- Describe some of tensions and possibilities that come with combining a range of health care services at one site.

- Were there any issues raised in this session that you feel require further exploration?

NOTE:

Attendance certificates will be issued via email from 31 January 2023 pending verification of your attendance by the platform’s analytics. This is not an automated process, so please allow time for these to be issued.
